

Saudi Aramco

Daniel R. Wilson

Daniel joined the Management Development Department in March of 2006. He brings to Saudi Aramco over 30 years of extensive international experience in a variety of industries including oil and gas, high technology, heating, air conditioning and refrigeration, and telecommunications. He has provided consultation to leaders and executives in the areas of leadership, coaching, personal and professional development, career planning, assessment technologies and executive development. He has successfully designed and implemented global leadership and organizational development initiatives including group and team dynamics, change management and succession planning.

Daniel received his Bachelor of Science in Psychology from Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas and his Masters Degree in Industrial-Organizational Psychology from Lamar University, Beaumont, Texas.

Daniel is married to Susan and they have a son, Derek, who works for Forrester Research in Dallas, Texas. Dan's interests include fishing, riding his Harley, travel, and spending time with his family.