

Glenn Prickett

Chief External Affairs Officer
The Nature Conservancy

Glenn Prickett is Chief External Affairs Officer at The Nature Conservancy (www.nature.org), the leading organization working around the world to protect lands and waters for people and nature. Glenn is a member of the Conservancy's executive team and oversees international and U.S. government relations, corporate practices and sustainability efforts, and relationships with leading international institutions and non-governmental organizations. Glenn joined The Nature Conservancy in January 2010 after two decades working on international environment and development policy.

Glenn spent 13 years at Conservation International where he led efforts to engage the private and public sectors in conservation and sustainability. Glenn founded and led CI's Center for Environmental Leadership in Business, a division created to engage the private sector in developing solutions to environmental challenges. During his time at CI, Glenn also led the organization's policy and climate change teams. In 2009, Prickett served as a senior fellow at the United Nations Foundation to help shape core elements of an effective global response to climate change. Glenn served in the Clinton Administration as chief environmental advisor at the U.S. Agency for International Development, where he coordinated policy and budget for U.S. environmental and energy assistance to developing nations. Glenn began his career in 1989 as a senior associate with the international program of the Natural Resources Defense Council.

Glenn graduated from Yale University in 1988 with a B.A. in economics and political science. He lives in Great Falls, Virginia with his wife Lisa and sons Benjamin and Jed. Aside from his family and conservation, Glenn's other passion is music. He currently performs with the Oxymorons (www.oxymorons.com), a blues, rock, and funk band in Washington DC.
